

UNDERSTANDING 'LEFT BEHIND' NEIGHBOURHOODS A VISUAL GUIDE

About this visual guide

This visual guide compares the characteristics of 'left behind' neighbourhoods to deprived areas and England as a whole.

All data is taken from research carried out by OCSI and Local Trust and can be accessed here and here.

The paper also references polling research commissioned by Local Trust from Survation.

About the Community Wealth Fund Alliance

This visual guide was produced by the Community Wealth Fund Alliance (CWFA). The CWFA seeks to secure investment in social infrastructure in those 'left behind' neighbourhoods across the country that need it most. It is a cross-sectoral campaign to persuade government that the next wave of dormant assets should be invested for this purpose. Local Trust provides the secretariat to the Alliance and is one of its founders.

INTRODUCTION

What are 'left behind' neighbourhoods?

Research by Local Trust and Oxford Consultants for Social Inclusion (OCSI) identifies 225 'left behind' wards across England. These neighbourhoods are not only severely deprived – they rank among the 10 per cent most deprived on the Index of Multiple Deprivation – they also have the highest levels of community needs. They are in the 10 per cent of areas with the weakest community provision based on a new Community Needs Index.

Compared with other similarly deprived areas, these wards have: worse socioeconomic outcomes across all metrics; worse educational attainment; lower participation in higher education; fewer job opportunities; and significantly worse health outcomes.

What is the Community Needs Index (CNI)?

OCSI developed the CNI in 2019 to assess levels of social infrastructure in all the wards in England. It is based on the following three domains:

Civic assets: access or proximity to key community assets such as pubs, libraries and green space.

Connectedness: access to key services, such as health services, transport, digital infrastructure and local jobs.

Engaged community: activity of charities in the area and residents' engagement in civic life and community.

Why we use the term 'left behind'

We recognise that the term 'left behind' can be controversial. It can imply a lack of rich and diverse heritage as well as local pride in communities. When used to describe a set of places, it can suggest that each place faces and reacts to challenges in the same way, instead of highlighting the uniqueness of every area.

We do not use the term to reinforce these stereotypes. Instead, we use the term to signal that these areas have not received a fair share of investment and therefore lack the services and facilities needed to bring communities together.

Research suggests that some people living in areas that have experienced low levels of investment identify with the term 'left behind', as it is instinctively understandable and has political, social and cultural resonance. These communities are also suffering disproportionately from the impact of COVID-19; their challenges, particularly those associated with unemployment and poor health, are likely to be exacerbated by the pandemic over the medium to long term.

'Left behind' neighbourhoods are largely concentrated in housing estates on the edges of our post-industrial towns and cities primarily in the Midlands and the north of England and in coastal communities in the South and East of England.

The Community Wealth Fund Alliance is proposing a multi-billion-pound Fund to invest in social infrastructure in 'left behind' neighbourhoods. It is asking government to create an endowment from the next wave of dormant assets (from stocks, shares, bonds and insurance policies) initially worth £880m. The goal is to secure further funding over the long-term to make the Community Wealth Fund a self-sustaining endowment capable of delivering funding in perpetuity. We are also asking government to release the £500m in the National Debt Fund to provide early stage investment for the Community Wealth Fund.

Funding would be provided to 'left behind' communities over the long term (10-15 years). Spending decisions would be made by residents, with appropriate support, building their confidence and capacity to transform their area, increasing prosperity and improving quality of life into the future.

This visual guide outlines some of the key socio-economic characteristics of 'left behind' neighbourhoods, including employment, health and Covid-19 vulnerability; summarises research that surveyed local residents' aspirations for their local area; and provides the full list of the 225 wards.

Part 1: The impact of being 'left behind'

Employment, economy and poverty

'Left behind' areas have considerably fewer local jobs compared to other poor areas (Figure 1). The below graph depicts the 'jobs density' - which measures the number of jobs found nearby as a percentage of the working age population. It shows there is a sizeable jobs deficit in 'left behind' areas, with only 52.5 jobs available locally per 100 people. In other deprived areas, the figure is 80.8.

Source: Business Register and Employment Survey (BRES), 2018.

COVID-19 has created a spike in unemployment in both 'left behind' neighbourhoods and other equally deprived communities (Figure 2). However, with fewer employment opportunities available in 'left behind' communities prior to the crisis, their unemployed residents are likely to find it harder to secure jobs post pandemic.

A higher proportion of the working-age population receives some form of state-benefit in 'left behind' areas (Figure 3).

Source: OCSI based on HM Revenue and Customs/Department for Work and Pensions, 2015.

Health

Residents in 'left behind' neighbourhoods suffer from significantly worse health outcomes than those in other equally deprived communities and England as a whole (Figure 5).

Education

Residents of 'left behind' neighbourhoods leave school with lower grades, and the proportion with no qualifications at all is markedly higher than other equally deprived areas (Figure 6). This is likely to make it harder for people to gain employment, particularly employment that pays a decent wage.

Source: OCSI based on Department for Education (DfE), 2013-2014. Note: Level 1 (1x GCSE or equivalent) Level 2 (5+GCSE passes or equivalent) Level 3 (A-levels or eauivalent). Participation in higher education is also markedly lower in 'left behind' neighbourhoods compared to other equally deprived areas (Figure 7).

Note: This chart tracks cohorts of 16 year old school pupils in England who completed their GCSEs between 2010 and 2014. It matches them to higher education records for academic years 2012-2013 to 2017-2018.

COVID-19 vulnerability

The British Red Cross COVID-19 Vulnerability Index brings together data on clinical vulnerability, demographic vulnerability, social vulnerability and health inequalities to identify neighbourhoods 'at risk' from the effects of COVID-19. It shows that 'left behind' neighbourhoods are much more vulnerable to the virus (Figure 8).

Source: OCSI based on British Red Cross, 2020.

These neighbourhoods, despite being at greater risk from the pandemic, have not had the same support to deal with it (Figure 9). It would appear that they have not accessed the same levels of emergency funding as elsewhere. Early data from 360 Giving on 97 funders who have used the words 'COVID' or 'Coronavirus' in grant descriptions indicates that they have received less than half the funding per head.

Early data from COVID-19 Mutual Aid UK (Figure 10) suggests that many fewer mutual aid groups have been set up in 'left behind' neighbourhoods.

Part 2: What 'left behind' communities want

Resources for communities

Polling in 'left behind' neighbourhoods (Figure 11) found those saying their area got less investment, places to meet was cited most in missing out on funding (57 per cent). This was closely followed by community facilities such as leisure and sports facilities (55 per cent). This highlights the importance that residents in 'left behind' communities place on local social infrastructure – places to meet and other community facilities which bring people together. They were both seen as more important than investment in job opportunities and tackling unemployment – the third highest priority at 53 per cent.

Figure 11: You said that your area gets less resources, which areas do you feel are missing out?

Source: Survation/Local Trust polling, 2020. Note: All respondents unweighted total: 1003.

Decision-making power

63% of residents in 'left behind' neighbourhoods agree that local residents have the capacity to really change the way their area is run (Figure 12).

Figure 12: To what extent do you agree with the following statement: When people in this area get involved in their local community, they really can change the way that their area is run?

Note: All respondents unweighted total: 1003.

When asked if a fund was set up to help their community, who should lead decisions about how the money was spent, a clear majority (54%) said local people, with a further 17% saying it should be local charities and community organisations (Figure 13). This indicates strong support for community led funding, on the model of the proposed Community Wealth Fund, in these areas.
